Reference for Patrick Tourniaire,

25/09/2018

To whom it may concern,

This letter is to confirm that Patrick Tourniaire was a student on our Computer Science summer course, from 1/07/2018 until 14/07/2018. The teaching was carried out in small-group seminars and tutorials by Mcebisi Ntleki.

In my capacity as Director I did not directly teach Patrick Tourniaire, but I found them to be a conscientious and personable student.

The course tutor, Mcebisi, has written the following report on Patrick Tourniaire's performance:

Patrick was always calm and reflective. He appears to be an accomplished programmer. He knew quite a great deal already about programming, and the little he didn't know he learnt rather quickly. He would benefit immensely from going to a competitive University, like Oxford and Cambridge, for example, where the limits of his knowledge and understanding would be constantly tested and his fine efforts would be rewarded.

I should note that due to the short time frame of the course, we do not ask students to sit a final exam, nor require tutors to give a final grade.

This letter constitutes an official and signed document from Oxford Summer Courses.
